Bonn Plan Rejected By France

BRUSSELS (AP) West German and French finance chiefs disagreed today, over methods to solve the international monetary crisis set off by the flood of United States dollars into Europe.

Karl Schiller, West German economics minister, proposed that the six Common Market currencies be allowed to float—that is, to find—theirown level in terms of the U.S-dollar on world markets based on supply and demand. He said the period of floating should be limited.

But Valery Giscard d'Estaing, the French finance minister, and chairman of the emergency Common Market meeting, said a concerted float of all Common Market currencies was "not plaus-tible" Karl Schiller, West German

Will Bennett Sell PGE?

By JOHN MIKA (Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — It has been learned authoritatively that Transport Minister Don Jamieson is sending an invitation to Premier W. A. C. Bennett for a friendly, private showdown in Victoria next month on the future of railways, possibly highways, ports and probably pipelines.

The premier is to say whether it should be played out before or after the June 16-18 constitutional conference in the B.C. capital.

As Important as Conference

It may be almost as important a game for half the country, as the conference itself.

The stakes are high, involving rationalization of the national interest in future development of both the Pacific Rim and northern transportation networks in Canada as well as huge sums.

That's why all the shut-out bystanders, including cabinet ministers from all provinces west of Quebec, some of the country's biggest corporation chairmen from Vancouver to chairmen from Vancouver to Montreal and even a few foreigners from the U.S. and Japan will be watching intently for the smallest inkling of how the cards turn up.

It probably won't be known for months — until someone starts cashing in some of the hidden chips — but the odds are the pot will be split again after some funcy bets are met.

Private Talks on Many Points

"The private talks will touch on half a dozen subjects from railways to ports," one of Ottawa's insiders said after asking for anonymity.

'Insofar as harbors are concerned—and this includes existing facilities at Roberts Bank, Fraser River, Burrard, Squamish, Sfewart, Kitimat and Prince Rupert — we have completed studies that will permit Mr. Jamieson and the cabinet to make determinations as to the position the federal government should take in respect to further development.

Seven Students Caned For 'Obscene' Essays

LONDON (Reuter) — Five girls and two boys were caned and a third boy was suspended after writing essays which their school principal considered obscene.

The essays were written a month ago, but the news of the punishment came to light today after the resignation of one of the school supervisors to protest the principal's decision.

THE GALLUP POLL

Day-Care Nurseries Favored by Most

By THE CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

The majority of Canadians (61 per cent) would welcome a network of day-care nurseries, subsidized in part by government, with payments by parents on a sliding scale. They want it for two main reasons. Most women who work, they claim, do so to create a better standard of living for their children; they have to work to meet constantly increasing costs. They need help, as haby-sitters are expensive, hard to find; and not always satisfactory. Moreover, these citizens claim, women are needed in today's professional and business life, and should not be penalized from working if they want to, because of small children.

Another large segment support the proposal in the interests of the children themselves, as they think many of them are now neglected, and that government sponsored day-nurseries would have good standards.

On the other hand, the minority (30 per cent) who would not endorse the proposal, object to it mainly because they disapprove of mothers with small children going to work, and object also to the increased taxes which could follow, "Why should we subsidize mothers with small children, just because they want to work?" they ask. "Kids should be with their mothers."

"The Royal Commission on the Status of Women has recommended that a network of day-care surseries he established. Parents would pay fees on a sliding scale, and both federal and provincial governments would contribute to the cost. Would your approve or disapprove of such a project?"

The analysis of opinion below shows that Quebec is least in favor of such a network, with the west most approving. Those men and women in homes of labor union members are far more interested in the proposal, than those who are not.

Man Behind the Dollar Crisis

By JONATHAN C. RANDAL PARIS (WP) — The men who touched off the current monetary crisis are faceless and anonymous in keeping with the classic portrait of the speculator.

But the odds are that they have little in common with the greedy cigar-smoking manipulator — symbolized by British contempt for the "gnomes" of Zurich — whom legend depicts as always ready to turn a quick profit by doing in a vulnerable currency.

by doing in a vulnerable currency.
Rather they are more likely to be worried middle aged men in grey flannel suits or other similarly sombre attire which go with their functions as professional money managers of the giant multinational companies.

WORRY BASIS

WORRY BASIS

Their worry is based on the very opposite of speculation:
a desire to conserve and husband the hundreds of millions of dollars worth of funds kept in any of more than a dozen currencies in which their companies do their worldwide business.
Such duties are not without their hazards. The market places of the Western world are strewn with the barely living bodies of money managers who stayed too long in sterling in 1967 or in French francs two years later and have been demoted to some semi-menial task for their sins.

25 Million in U.S. Living 'In Poverty'

WASHINGTON (WP) — For the first time in a decade, the number of persons officially recorded as living in poverty in the U.S. increased signifi-cantly.

The number considered to be "poor" increased by about 1.2 million between 1969 and 1970, the U.S. Census Bureau reported Friday.

That increase contrasted sharply with the trend of the past decade. In every year of the 1960s, U.S. statisticians have found the number of people living in poverty to be decreasing. decreasing.

There had been an average annual decline of 4.9 per cent during the 1960s. But between 1969 and 1970 the number living in poverty actually increased by 5.1 per cent.

This meant that about 13 per cent of the American population (25.4 million people) was living on income less than the officially designated level of poverty. At the beginning of the 1960s, about 22 per cent were considered to be living in poverty.

Rising une mployment apparently explains most of the sudden reversal in the poverty picture.

At the start of 1969, the

At the start of 1969, the unemployment rate was at a low point of about 3.3 per cent, but by the end of 1970 it had risen to 6.2 per cent.

Prime Minister W. A. C. Bennett will light the commemorative Festival cairn in front of the Parliament Buildings in Victoria at noon on Thursday, May 20th. The ceremony will be pre-ceded by the Parade of Athletes through downtown Victoria.

It's Festival time again! Time to enjoy the traditional hospitality and majestic beauty of Vancouver Island. You'll want to see all the new attractions in Victoria. Breathe the soft, fresh, flower-scented air. Relax on east coast beaches where the first warm tides of summer caress the shore. Or, drive out to watch ocean combers crashing in at Sooke, Tofino and Uctuelet. The country-side is lovely, the fishing is great and Festival of Sports events in most communities will double your rewards.

bor renewal scheme rounds up very effectively the philosophy of the concept and many of the details. whereby public and private investment can combine to create a area closely adjacent to the business

The advantages of such a juxtaposition need little emphasis, and when it is considered that the program will bring back to life a section of the city which has deteriorated generally into warehouses and decaying buildings, the net gain to the community will be large. Another benefit of the plan is that since the area has no housing at present, new living accommodation can be provided without displacing residents during the rehabilitation work.

The general plan for the Causeway-to-Johnson-Street area - and somewhat beyond - is one of living accommodation, pedestrian malls and squares, recreation places and some commercial premises to serve residents and visitors. With initial city encouragement in establishing park areas and similar amenities there undoubtedly will be a movement of private capital to the district - as the creation of Bastion Square has already demonstrated on a relatively small scale. From a depressed area the Wharf Street neighborhood could become one of ing places in the city.

If that general aspect is to be preserved valuable residential and recreational and it is a priceless one - it is folly to hem in the waterfront or dominate high land with towering structures which act in opposition to the basic concept. We already have unfortunate examples of this.

For this reason City Council should not arbitrarily tie in highrise development in the Wharf Street area with acceptance of the rehabilitation program in general. The lure of high-tax property and superplans should not blind civic eyes to the disadvantages which would follow. Many of the bigger-andbetter promotions of a few years ago in some communities are now seen to have been detrimental in the long run. The subdivision that wiped out acres of farm land, the pulp mill that ruined a river or a lake, the city building that shadowed a neighborhood or created permanent traffic problems - such projects have been seen in many a city. We should plan and build in harmony with the essential nature of Victoria, not in opposition to it.

But the distingnished scientist enters a different realm when, justifying imposed sterilization on the undesirable, he clares "we are far too soft" in our eatment of offenders. This is a oral issue, not a scientific one.

times: Who is to decide who are "the wrong kind of people"?

As at least one reputable Canadlan geneticist has pointed out, the world could be a sorry place inhabited by only the super race types that Hitler might have chosen as survivors of genetic "improvements."

There is, too, a serious flaw in the suggestion that society should make a start by sterlizing "the wrong kind of people". After the start, what comes next? People who are not quite so definitely "the wrong kind"? Where does the process stop?

Sterilization may promise an effective partial attack on the major problem of over-population. But imposed sterilization, progressively applied, would inevitably evolve to the point where some one, or some authority, must play God. Perhaps western society is "too soft" to provide a universally acceptable industry was so complete that one man, Ulysses S. Mutter, operated the whole productive apparatus single-handed and produced all the nation's goods, But all Canadians: who wanted to work were fully employed by the government to supervise and regulate Mr.

Hutchison Mutter's business, to inspect his ledgers, examine his profits and make sure that the last of the private enterprisers paid his taxes, which alone supported the expenditure of the state.

This system had long been foreseen the better economists. As early as 1971 the statistics clearly indicated that the state would soon employ everyone not to produce but to consume. From their budgets it was equally clear that the federal, provincial and municipal governments would collect all but a minute fraction of the nation's income through taxes, That fraction was retained by Mr. Mutter, the only self-Canadian. And while his come of $100 million a year was often attacked by the NDP as excessive, ha was left with exactly $5,000 after payin his taxes.

No other Canadian would work for, such a wage, but Mr. Mutter was a strange man. He liked to work, He enjoyed producing goods. In fact, as the official board of psychiatrists reported secretly to the government, Mr. Mutter was certifiably mad and should be Nevertheless, Prime Minister Trudeau system of Canada had been (now quite an old man himself) refused to lock Mr. Mutter up. As he remarked to the cabinet, "if Mutter is mad I wish. you guys were, too. Then we might get some business done around here. No, leave Mutter alone. If he stops producing

> So Mr. Mutter went on working 20 hours a day, seven days a week, in the only man who knew how to produce anything, the police winked at his crime. Questioned in Parliament, John Turner the aged minister of justice, admitted that the legal-case against Mr. Mutter was strong but complex and would require at least a decade of further

> When the decade passed the study was still under way. Mr. Mutter was still producing madly and the nation had reached a new pinnacle of prosperity Yet something was wrong with the system. Like the government, Mr. Mutter had grown old and tired:

News Kept Secret

That fact had been suspected for some years by the corps of a thousand distinguished physicians who checked the producer's health once a week. But since their private reports to the government bureaucracy the prime minister did not see them for a year and often two.

He was greatly shocked, therefore, to learn, on January 1, 2002, that Mr. Mutter might not produce much longer. The news was kept secret, of course, and Information Canada announced that the economic system had never been in such

The government now faced the problem of replacing Mr. Mutter, "It'll be easy to find a successor," Mr. Trudeau informed his colleaguees. "Any fool can produce. You don't need training or skill for that kind of thing but it takes years of higher education to make a government inspector, or even a cabinet

For once Mr. Trudeau was wrong. In the whole nation no substitute producer could be found. While the government searched in vain, the medical inspectors cancelled Mr. Mutter's production licence. They said he had failed his annual driver's test, disregarded traffic signs, parked his oar illegally on Parliament Hill and, worse, declared before witnesses in the Rideau Club that private enterprise was being destroyed by socialism.

The government could ignore the medical reports and keep Mr. Mutter going for a while, but his reckless talk of socialism was intolerable. "This is not a socialist system," the prime minister assured Parliament. "It is a mixed system based on individual incentives and rewards, dedicated to personal freedom. We shall never-surrender to the vile Marxian socialism of the NDP, So long as my government is in office private enterprise will be safe."

In truth it was no safer than the health and madness of Mr. Mutter, and suddenly, one morning, he resigned. Summoned to the prime minister's office, Mr. Mutter said he had studied the debates of Parliament and realized in a flash that private enterprise was a hideous evil, as all the political parties agreed. After a misspent life of production, his conscience had rebelled and he proposed to spend his few remaining years in prayer, and repentcost of the government.

Horrified by the imminent collapse of the economic system, Mr. Trudeau appealed to Mr. Mutter as a patriot and urged him to keep working under a secret agreement. The last producer was offered the same salary as a member of Parliament, with the same tax-free expense allowance and long-distance telephone privileges. No one could refuse such a generous offer. Mr. Mutter kept

Even the auditor-general was not permitted to hear of these arrangements and the medical reports were personally burned by the prime minister in his own fireplace on Sussex Street.

Brief Survival

"That," Mr. Trudeau admitted to his cabinet, "was a close shave, but the mixed economy has survived.

It didn't survive for long. Three days later, when the inspectors of the national revenue department finished their weekly inspection of Mr. Mutter's books and the doctors had checked his blood pressure, Mr. Mutter disappeared. His body was found in the Ottawa River with a suicide note stating that he had died of

After that the economic system was no longer mixed and produced nothing. But as Information Canada announced in a gaily-colored booklet, the loss of production didn't matter in the least when everyone lived on the government anyway. Still, the absence of all goods seemed to annoy the hungry and naked consumers. The government was de feated at the next election. And what happened from then on is not recorded because no one except Mr. Mutter how to operate the recording machines.

While the Sky Falls In The Chickens Peck

WEEK IN

The most obvious lesson learned by Victoria aldermen during this week's budget setting was the folly of lowering the mill rate last year.

That lesson is well learned now, probably for a long time to come.

every politically-minded busi-nessman to become an alderman, mount a white charger and cut taxes. So last year when Courtney Haddock be-came mayor he fulfilled this dream and cut the mill rate from 29.3 mills to 37.5 mills

Then, of course, wham! This year the mill rate comes back with ferocity and council hacks away at it in an influence on the budget, that's, where. Can we conclude that Haddock has given up his early promises to cut taxes in Victoria?

The process did produce, ver, some suggestions various aldermen on to economize in the

They range from a very sophisticated-sounding system of program planning and accounting suggested by Ald. Peter Pollen (just give me eight more men and I'll do it happily, said comptroller Jim Bramley) to that of a generally reduced level of janitorial work in city buildings, put forward by Ald. Hugh Ramsay.

Ramsay's suggestion seemed to make a lot of sense, especially since budget time comes almost too late in the year to start ripping up the floor boards of the city's

For one thing, everyone can see plainly that city hall is always polished to a turn and can probably stand at least a trial reduction in brilliance.

For another, it was left to the department head to figure his own way of cutting the cost of his operation. If a department head is told to scrap a particular project, he may resent it and he also may continue his other projects without any responsibility to economize But if he is told to damn well hack 10 per cent, the message will get through and he'll have to do it in bits and pieces through a general harassment of his budget.

One recalls that last year Haddock boldly ordered a $150,000 cut even after the new low mill rate had been

His only persistent efforts have been to try to make recreational, tourist and culfural enterprises sponsored by the city pay their own way.

These grants of one form or another amount to a pidding one per cent of the city's budget anyway. The effort, then, is an irrelevancy.

As the budget in all its enormity came before council Wednesday morning, aldermen groped desperately for some general approach to cutting it back in a same fashion, but the mayor kept insisting, "let's get on with it," and so they continued to serap and bicker on details and pet peeves. and pet peeves.

to limit the increase to four mills, but he had departed by the time the last cut was made. Ald. Harold Olafson was in half a rage over the bounding and spiralling fringe benefits that employees re-ceive, trying to convince others that contracting out

The cuts they did make about $380,000 worth — were mostly in places that Bramley suggested after the aldermen had failed to come up with an agreement on where they

This pointed up the difficulty that an alderman has—with the limited time avail-able to be an alderman—in knowing the details of even his own department's work. Unless he became an almost full-time, cabinet minister type, it's unlikely he could perform significantly.

Both these suggestions were ignered (although he noted some departments already produce work studies) and the result may be another agoniz-ing blind budget cutting ses-

Too Much Spent on City Hall Spit and Polish?

The reality that looms over this 1971 budget is that if the economic trends continue, the city will be forced to continue to grant substantial pay in-creases to staff while slowly cutting back visible services or give in to tax hikes

Instead of working throughout the year at economizing and improving efficiency, council's time is spent in piecemeal decisions on minor policy matters that are loo hot for permanent employees

It's a thankless task but if all the tears during the last few days of this week were for real, they will have only themselves to blame when the falls in next year at

The Long High Noon For Dam-Busters

For a while there, it looked as if the great Skagit Valley flooding battle could become the decisive showdown on the environment, a sort of ecological High Noon.

Once that issue was settled, the course of public policy on one of public policy on en vironmental preservation would be irrevocably in-fluenced — for the better, of course, because the Good Guys always win the big shootouts, don't they?

At least, that's the way some people envisioned it.

'No such luck. Environmental showdowns are starting to multiply like mosquitoes in a swamp.

Alaskan oil tanker issue raised its ugly head out of the waters just off the coast of Vancouver Island.

In a real sense it was a far bigger issue than the proposed flooding of the Skagit Valley by Seattle City Light. Almost everyone agreed that the flooding deal was a mistake which shouldn't be repeated, and probably wouldn't.

But where would be the limit of oil tanker traffic along the coast of the island? Nobody knows.

This mistake, if it is to be one, could be expanded almost indefinitely before some tragedy occurred.

Now, with an inevitability that is frightening, another monster is looming on the environmental horizon, rous-ing itself into new life after a prod from none other than Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

It's the proposed Moran Dam on the Fraser River about 15 miles upstream from

It's been around for many ears in the form of a years in the form of a dormant proposal but a living dream in the minds of those who value cheap electric power above everything else.

Jack Davis, the federal minister-to-be of the environ-ment, said last week the Moran Dam would be the greatest environmental decision ever to face B.C.

That's a prediction that could be proved wrong only by something as far-reaching as the North American Water and Power Missesses have been supported by the country of the and Power Alliance scheme to tap our water resources for the southwestern U.S., for (Never, a thousand times never, Premier Bennett has never, Premier Bennett has said about exporting water. But he won't be the man who makes that decision.)

Davis says the effect of the Moran Dam on the Fraser River fisheries would be the prime concern for his fisheries department whose job it is to protect that multi-million dollar industry.

long-term problems such as the silting up of the 170-mile reservoir behind the dam are capable of "more devastation than anything else I can think

He gets plenty of support from conservation groups who have battled the proposed dam for years. Their efforts paid off in the past with the same kind of solemn assur-ances from the provincial government as we're currently getting about water

But something has changed in the last year — the solemn assurances about protecting the fisheries are still there, has already made up its mind to go ahead with the Moran Dam and has stacked the deck accordingly by ruling out a potentially competitive source of power.

This doesn't mean the government wouldn't drop the idea if the technical people said it wasn't feasible. But there is the inescapable feeling that the feasibility will be figured on short-page and figured on short-range en-gineering principles rather than long-range, scientific en-

Bennett's enemies don't underestimate the possibility that he will "go to the people" on the Moran Dam but wheels are turning on the Moran Dant proposal.

Bennett last year asked the B.C. Energy board for a study of the province's power needs and sources for the next 15 years and made clear the Moran Dam was a part of that study. that study Test drilling is now being carried out at the site.

Some might say that it was only natural to include the Moran proposal in he study's terms of reference. It needn't have been a political decision

Perhaps. But was it only natural for Bennett to specifi-cally exclude the subject of nuclear power from the terms of reference when he included other kinds of thermal power?

It certainly wasn't natural. It was a political and per-sonal decision which helped make it inevitable that the Moran proposal would be reissue before adequate re-search has been done and then use his election victory as reason to proceed and try to force Ottawa to approve the project.

How many more of these disturbing showdowns will be able to stand before the well of public concern runs dry?

The optimistic answer to that question hinges on the acceptance of the view that there never will be decisive, tide-turning environmental decision that will make every-

There will be thousands of environmental showdowns, some big, some little, all important. The land, water and air will have to be saved a few cubic-feet at a time.

It will take perhaps the highest degree of public in-volvement in the history of politics to fight the never-ending battle.

For those who like drama, excitement and suspense not to mention life — it will he a great cause to support because High Noon could last forever.

President's Message:

Greetings comrades, we are now four months into 1971 and I am pleased to report that the various planned improvements to our Branch are almost completed. The new carpet will be installed in the main floor in a week or two. At this time. I would like to thank all members and their guests for their continued support, which is much appreciated. J. F. Lamport.

The dart boards and shuffleboard on the main floor have been re-located and the necessary lighting installed. Come out and enjoy a few games and try them out.

Entertainment: The Centennial Dance held last April was a great success and another one is planned for the early fall. A Big Thank You' to comrade dim Douglas and his hard working committee for an excellent job in the planning and carrying out of this most enjoyable event. The weekly entertainments continue, dancing every Friday evening to Belt Humphrey's band. Thursday and Saturday evenings the usual concerts are held.

Membership:

There are still a few 1971 cards to be picked up before JUNE 15. Members are also reminded to please inform the office of any change of address; this insures the continued delivery of their Legion magazines to the new address. Finally, if it is not content for any member to pick up his card, we suggest his dues be sent in and the office will then mail out the new card.

a growing protest rose from readers on this continent preponderance bad news in their papers. The newspapers supplied the ob-vious reply. Evil events were transpiring, they said. Mere failure to report them would failure to report them would not make them go away. The public needed to know what was going on so it could take corrective action where such was destrable and possible The protesting readers had reasonable rebuttal: Sure. But isn't there anything decent happening? Are we being adequately informed on man's humanity to man as well as

The lowering of stridency in the protest, it seems to me, sprang partly from a recog-nition by most newspapers that a more careful balance might be established, a more judicious use of space to tell the story of the constructive as well as the destructive trends and events of our times, and, on the part of readers, a recognition that bad news was still news.

Then into our uncertain local skies this week came a local skies this week came a rainbow. The simple gesture of a small girl who picked a bouquet of dandelions and gave them as her flower tribute to the Queen, provided one of the minor vignettes of one of the minor vignettes of life. A child wanted to show affection and esteem and found ready at hand, in the family's yard, a gay profusion of blossoms graciously re-ceived by the sovereign. * * *

For my money, Bill Hal-kett's shot of the dittle girl and the Queen ranks high in the record of human values, simple innocence and love. A fistful of colorful weeds - jf they were rare, they would be magnificent flowers has little actual value. The spirit of the gift is beyond price. Of such gestures happiness is made — happiness for anyone who can be touched by honest

The incident occupied a fleeting moment in a tour. It cannot cure the ills of the world, eliminate poverty, soothe the antagonisms of different groups in society, solve the major problems. Yet it might hold infinitely more importance in the scheme of things than a simple, personal, materially worthless gift might imply. Into the threnody of universal woes, it introduced the grace notes of unaffected cheerfulness and goodness. A little child had led us.

It seems important to me that the theme be explored by the idealistic young people of our time whose crusade for a better world is pegged tightly to an unattain tightly to an unattainable concept of perfection. If youth ever loses that dream, we're in trouble. If, on the other hand, youth mistakes the dream, the ideal, for the feasible, we could be in trouble also when youth de-stroys what exists because of imperfection and finds noth-ing to take its observed. ing to take its place.

There is a parable in a once widely-read volume (was it Olive Schreiner's "Dreams"?) in which the young hunter starts out to capture the dove of truth. After a lifetime's quest, he finds himself satisquest, he finds himself satisfied not to have caught the dove, but to have possessed one feather from it. This is the story of experience. The maturing person adjusts to the disappointments accompanying the realization that the ideal cannot be reached. Sufficient is it to have approached a little closer to the goal.

All unknowing, the little girl pointed to those small, bright successes that sparkle along the pursuit of a particular grail. In a society of flaws and frequent injustice, there are elements that inspire, that relieve the dolorous plaints of our current, prevailing discontents

These are the grains of spiritual nourishment we need. Even the late John Dean, perhaps the most pes-simistic misanthrope of Vic-toria's history understood that. In the headstone he had prepared long before he died, he made the point explicit. "It is a rotten world." he had inscribed in the granite.
"Its saving grace is the artlessness of the young and the wonders of the sky."

And occasionally some shining best, but not expecting it con-occasionally so me shining little deed sustains our hopes. The little girl with the dandelions, and the under dandelions, and the under-standing lady who accepted them, have provided that sustenance — and helped to offset the prevalence of bad news so troubling to many readers. The child sought to give happiness and did. The Queen reciprocated. Together they have surread a guissh of they have spread a splash of sunshine. It is something to treasure through winters of

To Take Over Most Borrowing

B.C. Municipal Authority Expects

NORTH COWICHAN - The newly-formed Municipal Finance Authority of B.C. will soon handle most municipal borrowing in the province, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis predicted here Friday.

Curtis, the authority's first ehairman, was speaking to more than 70 mayors, alderm.e n a n d administrators gathered at the 22nd annual meeting of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipali

While similar to agencies in Alberta, Newfoundland, Sas-katchewan and a few areas in the U.S., the MFA is unique because it has virtually absolute control over its own

"It is operated by local government for the benefit of local government," he said,

BETTER RATE

"By packaging requests for funds and going to the market with one or two large bond issues a year, the authority can obtain money at a better rate than can individual cities, towns and villages that go into the market with separate, competing issues.

"We believe the authority can obtain money at least half of one per cent cheaper than most individual muni-cipalities."

going to market with its first issue in the late spring.

The main reason why MFA is convinced it can obtain money cheaper is because "all the real property assets of this province stand behind each issue," Curtis said.

"The MFA has been granted the power to levy granted the power to levy against property assessments to meet any deficiency. This is the strongest possible guarantee that can be offered to any bond dealer, equal, we believe, to any provincial guarantee."

Another guarantee to pro-vide bond dealers with further confidence is the provision of a "debt reserve fund," Curtis said.

In the other municipal bond banks Curtis said a muni-cipality's request that the agency market an issue to provide the municipality with funds is at the whim of the

"This isn't to suggest the system doesn't work. In all likelihood it does but we believe that with the B.C. finance authority we have an opportunity to improve the system."

In MFA all 28 regional districts in B.C. appoint representatives to the authority. VICTORIA OFFICES

"These representatives "These representatives elect a chairman—ourrently myself—and a six-man board of trustees which deals with the day-to-day business." MFA currently has a staff under the direction of secretary-treasurer R. W. Long, with offices in Victoria.

Curtis said the MFA was formed after B.C. municipalities asked the provincial government to establish some type of municipal authority as a provincial corporation to market municipal bonds.

Many municipalities had, for some years, been faced with a difficult and sometimes impossible situation market-ing municipal bonds to carry out their capital improvement programs.

The establishment of MFA was a natural development of the regional district concept, he said. Curtis said the government used the regional district as the basis for establishing the "Oversimplifying the struc-ture of the MFA it could be described as one large regional district consisting of the whole province with one, and only one function, that of marketing and managing municipal and regional district debentures.

In dividual municipalities were given the right to opt out. The only municipality in the province to do so was Vancouver. "I would think that in the course of time Vancouver will come to realize there is much value in membership in the MFA," he said.

Hang on to Those Seeds, They Can Last Years

A noticeable complaint A notice able complaint from home gardeners this season has been the cost of a packet of seeds.

The argument is that a packet contains many times the amount of seed needed for a home garden so why not reduce the quantity and leave the price at the 15 to 25 cent level?

Gardeners, who voiced this complaint were not aware that most seeds can be stored several years without ous deterioration, thereserious fore a 50-cent packet used over three years amounts to

All peas and beans are good for three years, and the cabbage family up to four years. Good results are obtained from four-year-old turnip, beet and tomato seeds. why sow ten seeds to an inch of row when the resultant seedlings must be thinned to four or eight inches apart? Why not drop a couple of seeds four or eight inches apart in the first place?

Tips for The Home Gardener

A further saving in seed can be made when the gardener paused for a few inutes to figure the needs of e tamily for one or two

No family will consume a dozen cabbage in a week, yet in most gardens we see 12 to 24 large cabbages mature and going to seed. What use is a ten-foot row of mature lettuce to a family using two or three each week?

Lack of thought results in two kinds of peas and a row of beans in full production at the same time; an unnecessary surplus that cannot be handled without waste.

The home gardeners most incensed by the present-day price of a packet of seed appear to have given little thought to the various forms of waste listed above.

They usually pooh-pooh any idea of advanced planning to avoid waste and improve results, adhering to a life-time habit of sowing the entire vegetable garden in one day with the inevitable sur-pluses and shortages.

Another source of waste is sowing too early and having the seeds rot or losing the crop because it bolts to seed due to a severe check in to a severe check in growth.

The fame of Southern Vanouver Island as a year-around gardening spot leads newcomers to believe that seed will germinate outdoors seed will germinate outdoors at any time.

This is a fallacy. While in sandy warm soils certain seeds may germinate in March and April, the main outdoor seed sowing starts here in May just as it does on the Prairies and in Eastern Canada. And since we have a longer and slower growing season we find it better to delay for a week or 10 days delay for a week or 10 days than to be too early and lose everything.

When we follow the practice of sowing little and often our losses are never great should we be a week too soon, the later sowing catching up quickly and the loss passing unnoticed.

A few hastily scribbled notes on weather conditions, date of sowing, speed of growth, and time of first picking will prove invaluable planning next year's

There are three things to consider. Thesis: The carvlngs themselves, the painfully slow business of tapping and scraping pictures and images on the rocks of the northwest coast. Antithesis: The discovery of the carvings and the lifting of them from their eroded surface by means of photography. Synthesis: The production of a book with which you may sit in your armchair and travel to lonely parts of the rain forest and find there, beneath the infind there, beneath the in-curious trees, a message from primitive man.

Of Inhumanity

By WALTER MCKINNON The abominable conditions in which convicts were forced to exist on the chain gangs of the southern Unites States 40 years ago are, in 1971, a matter of dismal record, chronicled in history and fiction times without number.

For this reason alone, there slittle justification for the publication of Lonesome Road. It amounts to needless repetition because the stories of George Harsh have all been told before, by better storytellers.

The impression it leaves is one raised by the author himself in his foreward — his motives for writing it.

He says "autobiographies bring questions to mind. To begin with, there is the question of vindication. The subject of an autobiography is judged by his intentions, while the subject of a biography is judged by his deeds. There is a sea of difference. In writing this (Lonesome Road), I have tried to keep this difference in mind. I hope the reader will do the same."

This reader was unable to maintain such objectivity.

Just as powerful, if less precise, are Bill Bissett's poems. Bissett is angry, and puts down his raw feelings in deals with the wilderness, but his is the wilderness of the metropolis, of jail, drug raids, injustices and demons. Wayman's subject matter is the real world of social politics, and his poems have an and his poems have an intriguing ring of truth. He deals with the specifics of people being squashed by a large and myopic system, our system, and he deals with these specifics poetically. His lines are carefully constructed, his images seem just right. He seems to epitomize, in all the right ways, the direction of many young poets today who are dealing more and more with the real world of social pressures around them.

THE WINTER OF THE FISHER, by Cameron Langford. Macmillan. $6.85.

Cameron Langford I went to "The Mammals of B.C." Hence the facts. This fisher lived in the Canadian north, near the shack of an old Ojibway. He is a deadly shadow of the woods. He is wise and fierce and, in this novel at least, treasures a grudge.

Cameron Langford writes of his fisher with love, love of the sleek animal, love of the wild woods. His fisher was a refugee early in life from a forest fire set by a damfool hunter. The forest fire is described with the touch of a man who has seen a bushknows its devastating speed and the panic it creates in wildlife — natural enemies fleeing within touch of each other

There ensues a strange relationship of love-hate. Before it is over the old Indian saves the fisher's life a second time and they part as good neighbors — the fisher full of hen's eggs and a love affair. The love-making of the fisher is strenuous and prolonged.

The villain is a bearded trapper. Once he broke away from the hearded one's trap the fisher began a fend. He wrested the

I have no doubt that persons better informed than I could have a carnival of nitpicking with this book. What I do say is this: It should be read as a nevel. It will leave you with a northern woods spring in your nostrils

THE SULLIVAN YEARS: Unique ... and Finished

For 23 years, Ed Sullivan has shouted "Let's Hear It!" for the greats and near-greats of North American show business. He once cried "Let's Hear It for The Lord's Prayer!" after it was sung by Sergio Franchi.

His record run in television is ending, so let's hear it for Ed himself, along with John Mosedale, a former editor of the North American Newspaper Alliance, who searched for the secret of the Sullivan mystique, discovered there isn't really a Sullivan mystique, but uncovered some sparkling, amusing anecdotes and events in the career of Old Stoneface . . .

By JOHN MOSEDALE

Times News Service NEW YORK — And so, sometime in July — for complicated reasons, the exact Sunday is not yet known — the longest-running show in the brief, turbulent history of television will come to an end after 23 years, well over 1,000 Sabbath hours and Variety only knows how many performers, Advertising Age only knows how many "after NEW YORK - And so,

TOP TV SHOWS

Tonight

WORLD WE LIVE IN. 7 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Cameras descend into the predatory world beneath the surface of the sea to study survival methods. Shown are shark, barracuda, octopus and jellyfish armed with paralysing stings, plus their prey and their various means of defence.

MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE, 7:30 p.m., Channel 7, (Rerun.)

Guest star Anthony Zerbe does a competent job as an unsavoury nightclub owner who gets his hands on a prototype of a Russian secret weapon that IMF is attempting to deliver to U.S. officials. Peter Graves, Leonard Nimoy, Grey Morris,

LAWRENCE WELK SHOW. 7:30 p.m., Channel 4. The maestro turns the entire hour over to Mother tonight. You'll hear the band, Tanya, Ken, Sandi and Salli, Jos. Feeney and the Hotsy Totsy Boys singing "The Girl That X Marry," "Mama," "I Remember Mama," "Mother Machree" and "I Want a Girl," You'll even see the maestro dance to "Memories." A very pleasing, as well as sentimental, tribute.

SATURDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. "Guns for San Sebastian" (Rerun.) (1968.) So-so action drama about an army deserter (Anthony Quinn) who is befriended by a priest. When the cleric is murdered, Quinn assumes his identity and tries to save a town (San Sebastian). Sam Jaffe plays the priest, and rugged-featured Charles Bronson plays Telco, the leader of marauding Indians who harass the town and its people. Anjanette Comer is costarred. Quinn has done much better, and so have his pictures.

ARNIE. 9 p.m., Channel 7. (Rerun.) Hamilton Majors Jr.

MARY TYLER MOORE SHOW. 8 p.m., Channel 8; 9:30,

(Roger Bowen) schemes to catch an industrial saboteur. His plan is to "demote" Arnie, who promptly receives unwanted sympathy from friends and family. He also discovers that there's no saboteur at all, just a case of failing eyesight.

Channel 7. (Rerun.) Mary gets caught in the middle of a domestic squabble between her boss and his wife. She keeps inviting them to dinner, but the boss turns her down without explanation. Then she learns they are separated, and she

MANNIX. 10 p.m., Channel 7. (Rerun). Memories can sometimes, be too long. Darrin McGavin guests as Mannix's (Mike Connors) army mate in Korea, He's been harboring a grudge for these many years and suddenly shows up, aching for revenge, Dane Clark also appears in a guest star role.

Sunday

AUDUBON THEATRE. 5 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. This week's offering is a report on African wildlife research being conducted by students at the University of Nairobi. Included are studies of crocodiles, giraffes, cheetahs, hippos, rhinos and elephants.

THE WONDERFUL WORLD OF DISNEY, 6 p.m., Channel 2; 7:30, Channel 5. (Rerun.) This is the first of a two-parter, "Emil and the Detectives," based on Erich Kastner's book. Its heroes are a bunch of street urchins who become juvenile detectives after Emil (Bryan Russell) has his pocket picked in Berlin while he's enroute to visit relatives. Roger Mohley heads the street gang and Walter Slezak plays the sleek crook with big ideas.

LASSIE, 7 p.m., Channel 7. (Rerun.) A five-year-old mute hoy repays the favor and saves Lassie and her three puppies from tragedy in this episode, which seems appropriately titled "The Miracle." One of those segments in which there is

THE TH. 8 p.m., Channel 4. (Rerun.) Wayne Maunder, who once played General Custer on TV and later starred in "Lancer," plays a member of a group of young revolutionaries who plan to bomb a crowded courtroom. The FBI gets wind of the plan and Erskine (Efram Zimbalist Jr.) launches the dramatic search and race against threatened tragedy.

ED SULLIVAN SHOW. 8 p.m., Channels 2, 6, 7, 12. (Rerun.) The real stars on this show are military talent from U.S. bases around the world. They're supplemented by Roy Clark (Hee Haw's co-host), comedian Louis Nye, and singers Teresa Graves and Jeannie C. Riley.

THE WORLD WE LIVE IN. 8:30 p.m., Channel 9, (Rerun.) The world has an ample supply of water; but the trouble is 97.2 per cent of it is salty. How to convert this salty water into a product for human consumption, and other methods to find water supplies and conserve what we already have, are explored in this most interesting documentary.

EMMY AWARDS. 10 p.m., Channel 5. This the BIG night for the television industry. The 23rd annual National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences awards for the top achievements during the past season will emanate from the Hollywood Palladium with Johnny Carson as host and a slew of presenters including Lucille Ball, Jack Benny and Diahann Carroll.

'It was getting to be a millstone around my neck," he reflected. "We were work-ing our tails off and putting a good show together, but the ratings weren't there." His sanguine attitude is understandable. In a medium where 13 weeks is a good run and "you're only as good as your last show" approxi-mates the Golden Rule, the Sullivan years are unique. It could be compared to man walking the moon except four men already have done that. No one has duplicated Sulli-

Orchestra leader Ray Bloch recalls, "I can't say I thought very much of it." If neither saw the day when sponsors would pay $62,000 a commercial minute, they were not alone in their doubts. Jack Gould wrote in the New York Times.

"For a variety show, where a dominant personality is so helpful in tying up the loose ends, the choice of Ed Sullivan as master of cere-monies seems ill-advised. First video appearances with Sullivan are: Bob Hope — he had to start somewhere — Victor Borge, Sam Levenson, Harry Belafonte, Clark Gable, Margaret Truman, Hedy Lamarr, Marion Anderson, Shelley Berman, Sammy Davis, Jr., Rudolph Nureyev and Margot Fonteyn, Carol Burnett, Edith Fonteyn, Carol Burnett, Edith Piaf, Rodney Dangerfield (who came back 17 times) and Flip Wilson (who re-turned 12 times).

In a time of maniac change, the Sullivan show remained a constant in North American life. For almost two and a half decades, presidents and prime minister came and departed, foreign nations slipped easily from friend to foe and back, show business careers ballooned and blew up, speeches were written and forgotten, fashion changed in dress, music, the entire amalgam of what's been called bopular taste, and through it all Sullivan the unsmiling Irishman remained, as he's been called, the Mount Rushre of television.

Sullivan decided early on to Sullivan decided early on to let the talent speak for itself. When he suggested to Berle, then king of the tube, that he offended audience sensibilities by intruding on every act, Berle suggested Sullivan was only a newspaperman. Not long after, Berle became an ex king of the tube.

HIS SECRET

"There's too much damned talk on television," Sullivan argued. "Other variety shows have skillful hosts but they spend too much time getting into the act. The most difficult thing in the world is to shut up." (Berle wasn't alone in rejecting Sullivan's advice. Rival columnist Walter Winchell failed when he attempted to follow Sullivan into television, one factor cited as Winchell's comment that "boredom is other people's conversation.")

Labyrinthine researches into the secret of the Sullivan

SHOW OPENER

"There's only one thing you can be sure of on the Ed Sullivan show," said one observer. "The first act opens the show." He was thinking, perhaps, of the non-house-broken horse adding a "live" quality to the act as Frankie Laine in a Western setting, sang, "I believe, for ev'ry drop of rain, a flower grows son's first monologue flopped; Sullivan brought him back and the rest, as the saying goes, is history.) Sullivan's faith in the audience is religious. "Public opinion," he has said, "is the voice of God." And after a generation of one-liners and wisecracks about Sullivan's deportment on the air, the audience, that silent majority haps, uneasy memories of their own public appearance in some church pageant, may see themselves vindi-cated by a Sullivan gaffe.

'LET'S HEAR IT ...'

After Sergio Franchi sang a religious standard on the program in 1965, the host ran on the stage with the command, "Let's hear it for "The Lord's Prayer."

It was a moment to be treasured.
"I think my awkwardness on stage is the real reason I'm here today," Sullivan theorized. "It has aroused the mother instincts of America."

Firms Get

Bid Delay

Firms bidding on a contract to construct an ambulatory care unit at St. Joseph's Hospital have asked for and been granted an extra week to prepare their submissions,
The bids were to have been opened Thursday. The new deadline is 4 p.m. next Thursday.

The ambulatory care unit will be able to handle up to 4,000 minor surgery cases annually and is expected to cut sharply into the hospital's long surgery waiting list.

Cost of it has been estimated.

Victoria Man Wins Tax Appeal After 5 Years

A good illustration of what constitutes a modern coinciconstitutes a modern coincidence occurs when one can simultaneously see government, at its bureaucratic worse, upbraided by the courts at their judicial best.

I doesn't happen often enough, so when it does, it is worth noting. A recent tax case offers a look at the pluses and minuses of the tax system — and should cause us to reflect a little on the proposition: How far have we really come along the road to the free society?

really come along the road to the free society?

The setting was Victoria, but similar incidents occur daily across the land. The amount of tax involved is only a few hundred dollars, but that, too, is typical of thousands of disputes which arise each year between citizens and government, where the taxpayer feels helpless in a contest with the stone cold bureaucracy whose tenacity and financial* resources are limitiess.

The case involved a retired civil servant whose wife had been totally invalided as a result of a fall in which she broke both legs and hips. For five years preceding her death she had been totally incapacitated, requiring somebody to feed, dress and somebody to feed, dress and bathe her 24 hours per day. Her husband couldn't afford to put her into a nursing home for over the years he looked after her personally but still required casual help to attend her during the day. LISTINGS FRIDAY

Each year he would write to the tax office telling them of his plight and requesting some sort of tax relief to offset his extra expenses. And each year the tax department rejected his pleas.

It isn't clear how this could happen, since the law specifically provides that a tax-payer can deduct from his income the cost of one full-time attendant for a dependent who is incapacitated for the entire taxation year.

Nevertheless, in spite of the taxpayer's annual request for help, the tax department didn't bring to his attention his rights. However, in 1969 he did learn that he had been entitled to the tax deduction. Back he went to the ax another answer.

They pointed out that the law respecting the allowance of these expenses only operates "if payment . . . is proven by filing receipts."

The taxpayer protested, asking how he could be expected to have kept the receipts when he had been told each year that the expenses of nursing care wasn't deductible. He could not now trace all the women he had paid over the years. he had paid over the years, since the turnover had been

The Victoria tax officials shrugged, claimed they had no alternative except to deny the claim and close the file.

Not the taxpayer, Although at the time the case was heard he himself was in poor health, he took his argument to the tax appeal board.

His prospects were bleak, legally speaking. The tax law has been judicially interpreted many times in this type of situation and all suthorities agree that where a taxpayer is seeking an exemption, such as the deduction of an expense, he must strictly and literally comply with the exact wording of the law granting the exemption.

granting the exemption.

It might have seemed that his failure to keep receipts and prove, rather than esti-mate, actual expenses, would be a fatal bar to success before the law. It's generally agreed, too, that while the tax department has a fair meaure of discretion in the way n which the tax law is applied, the tax courts are bound to apply the law as it is written.

Nevertheless, when the case came on before J. O. Weldon, QC, he would have none of it. He looked for a hair to split, and found it, presumably because he believed the tax-payer had already been sufficiently abused by the system.

While the taxpayer failed to provide formal receipts, Weldon was satisfied that he had proved the expenditure and had thus compiled with the spirit and intent of the law. He allowed the deduction.

In expressing a view on the state of the law and the bureaucracy which administers it, one can do no better than adopt the comment of Toronto's Gwyneff McGregor.

Writing in the Canadian Tax Journal, the noted tax

It takes only one case like this to destroy what it is trying to build up, and to alienate large sections of the public."

"It is a crying shame that an elderly taxpayer, struggling against heavy odds, should be hounded — and we use the word advisedly, strong as it is — in this matter for the sake of tax on a miserable $950."

Of course, she is right.

In this era of proliferation

In this era of proliferation of complex laws, and an almost endless profusion of new state boards, tribunals, commissions and other regulatory bodies, governments have a tendency to forget why they exist: to serve, not dominate.

They must be reminded, as Weldon has done, that if any mistakes are acceptable, it is those errors which favor the individual, not the state.

FEELING the foot-blistering pace of today's 25 mile-long Miles for Millions march are Julie Barber, left, and Janice Jones. Early reports on the march indicated that few people were dropping out permanently. Both girls, by the way, got back on their feet and limped onward.

Pilgrimage of Idealists And an Earthy Feeling

By BOB MITCHELL

There's a wonderful feeling about being part of 10 to 12thousand people just waiting to do something straighfor-ward, like walk 25 miles.

It was a happy crowd — mainly teen-agers — that gathered this morning on the Centennial Stadium parking lot, a crowd filled with good feelings just from being together under the clear morning sunlight.

There was the idealism, too, the feeling that a good cause is worth a pilgrimage, the need to punish the body a little in order to make a real contribution to a charitable Thirst was a problem for youngsters who didn't bring their own drinks. Neighborhood grocery stores and cafes were jammed with customers seeking soft drinks. Some residents along the route put up crude signs offering water through garden hoses, and one enterprising family sold homemade drinks.

no action.

Rough calculations by city officials showed the effect of the increase to be a 10 per cent actual dollar increase in taxes, when assessment in-creases are also calculated. A 74.91 mill rate means property owners will pay $74.91 for every $1,000 worth of taxable assessments. By making actual cuts in departmental expenditures, council was only able to bring the mill rate increase down from the 7.91 they were first faced with about 5.3 mills. The final cut probably will come out of contingencies.

The total amount cut from the record budget will be about $461,000, leaving it set at about $24,782,000.

Any further decrease in the amount approved would begin to cut back seriously on services, council was told.

The only change in revenue structure will be an adjust-ment in most types of con-struction inspection fees, to more closely cover the cost of the service.

LEAVES MEETING

Ald. Tom Christie left Friday's meeting early, explaining that he had another engagement. But as he left, he made it clear he was upset at council's unwillingness to make major budget cuts.

"I gave you a few good ideas on how to reduce this budget by at least two mills, but if you want to horse around with a couple of $100 around with a couple of $100 items, you'll have to do it without me," Christie said.

A later attempt to reduce the increase to four mills was made by Ald. Peter Pollen. He got support for doing more paring work only from aldermen Cylde Savage and Robert Baird. Robert Baird.

Home values and assessments vary widely, but the 16 per cent increase would mean, for example, that a home worth about $20,000, assessed at $5,000, would be taxed $374.55

First he studies the line, the grass, the contour, the distance, and also engages in all the other normal research that is involved. This done, he makes his preliminary address of the ball. Then, while concentrating primarily on the line the ball must take, and more important, primarily on the line the ball must take, and more important, the distance it must travel, he takes his eyes back slowly from the hole to the ball.

"In other words," he explained, "I try to form a mental picture of where the ball must go.

"Then, after I've addressed the ball, I close my eyes. In this way I can concentrate solely on distance. I already have the line. Then, when ready, I putt. With my eyes still closed!

"And you would be surprised at how successful it has been."

If his game of blind man's buff on the putting green is a

If his game of blind man's buff on the putting green is a success, he made yet another point to prove it.

By way of emphasis, he said that once Jack Nicklaus has taken his putting stance, rarely does he look up again for another peek at the hole. And while he is standing motionless over the ball, and Jack stands there a long time, he is concentrating slowly on stroking the ball correctly, and especially the required distance.

In other words, he could just as well have his eyes closed. Because he never looks up after he has made his

This is why, too, Balding suggested, that so often a professional golfer can make those seemingly remarkable recovery shots.

It's concentration, nothing else, Balding explained. The pro has all the strokes, and when trouble is encountered he simply paints himself a picture of where the ball must go. If he must hook the ball around a tree, that is his shot. Not he must hook the ball around a tree, that is his shot. Not trying to reach the green at all costs. Because if the ball is hit correctly, it may wind up beside the pin anyway.

This, said Balding, is where the average golfer goes wrong. The weekender starts thinking of the lake on the right and the woods on the left. He's so nervous he's almost afraid to hit the ball. If he'd just concentrate on hitting the ball to a certain place, he'd do better, and score better too.

So be positive and concentrate, that's today's lesson, and if your putter goes sour, think twice before graphing another.

If your putter goes sour, think twice before grabbing another one out of the barrel. It may not be the blade at all.

George Archer is a case in point, Balding went on. Archer had won the Masters, he was besieged with offers to tell how he had done it. One of these features was "How to putt—by George Archer." Because after all, hadn't his touchon the greens enabled him to ride above all the rest? Sure, it

But just as quickly, it developed that Archer's putting wasn't really all that great. He wasn't winning any more tournaments either.

Aha, he thought, I must be doing something wrong. Soon

Archer was trying to recall what he had written in last week's column. Am I holding the club right? Let's see, now, Have I changed my stance? 'Sure, he was thinking," said Balding, "but he just wasn't concentrating."

How did he get over it? "He stopped believing his own stuff, and concentrated on getting the ball up to the hole."

So go ahead, try it. Close your eyes. It may be a new

Door Slams on Sammy

NEW YORK (AP) - Slammin' Sammy Snead, who has been chasing the U.S. Open title for more than a quarter of a century, will not be able to play in this year's event, the U.S. Golf Association said Friday.

The doors were closed to Snead by the USGA, despite the fact the golfing great said he had not yet received an application form for the tournament to be played at the Merio Golf Club in Ardmore, Pa., June 47-20.

Eddie Miller, executive assistant of the USGA, said the filing datefor entries had declined more than 100 entries that came in Thursday and Snead couldn't be accepted at this late date."

Miller also asserted that Snead had been sent applications to his home and to his club. But Snead, in Hot Springs, Va., said, "I'm still waiting for an application form, I'd like to be in this year more than ever. I want it this year because — well, maybe it's the last wear for me."

ead, 59, never has won the Open, a title he first began chasing in 1937.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Washington Senators traded pitcher Darold Knowles and first baseman Mike Epstein to Oakland Athletics Friday night for three players, including first baseman Don Mincher.

The trade was announced in Minneapolis after the Senators defeated the Twins 6-5 in a game saved by Knowles. Senators owner Bob Short said the trade was completed only after the game with the Twins.

In addition to Mincher, the Senators received catcher Frank Fernandez, left-handed pitcher Paul Linblad and an undisclosed amount of cash.

Epstein, who is batting .247 this year, has been the subject of trade rumors for two or three years. He has struck out 31 times in 85 times at bat this season.

'Sport' Set Apart From 'Recreation'

HAMILTON (CP) — Plans for a major multiple-sports event each year in Canada were announced Friday by Health Minister John Munro.

The national competitions, beginning with the second Canada Summer Games in Burnaby-New Westminster, B.C., in 1973,

The minister also announced that sports and recreation will be divided into separate directorates within his department and new regional sports offices, similar to one in operation in Winnipeg, will be set up in Vancouver and Montreal.

Munro, in announcing the yearly competitions, said his department had discussed with the sports governing bodies the possibility of organizing an event in the years between the Canada Games, "perhaps to be called the Canada Olympic Trials."

He said it was suggested that the trials be started in 1972 but the various sporting—bodies found this was not feasible.

The minister also announced that should have an opportunity of further domestic stimulus." The Olympic Trials would be "oriented toward excellence," with national champion-ships held "under one umbrella at one time."

GETS BECOMMENDATIONS

Referring to the division of sports and recreation in his department, the minister said that as a result of various recommendations from sports bodies in Canada "we can best reconcile the concerns that exist within the sport structures in this country by maintaining the directorate of sport within the expert structures in the various sporting—bodies found this was not feasible.

CAN GO IN 1974

"We are all confident that this new type of national competition can be organized and operational by 1974," the minister said in a 26-page submission.

He then gave a schedule of sporting events up to 1981:

Fort Rodd History Coming to Light MAK

Fort Rodd Hill hope to throw new light on how the 44-acre national historic park site was used by Indians in pre-historic in the 1860s.

About 12 fourth-year students of archaeology from the University of Victoria since mid-spring have been excavating part of an ancient midden situated on the east side of the park facing Esquimalt harbor.

Artifacts must also have been dug up when the British built the fort between 1880 and 1885 as part of their Pacific Defence system.

"The Indians too had an eye for defence," said Rippengale. "And this was a natural defensive position. There was also running water," So far, tiny bone and stone artifacts related to fishing, seal and porpolse hunting have been found.

BEFORE WHITES

Donald Mitchell, associate professor, department of anthropology and sociology, says the material is at least 250 years old, and used by Indians before they came in contact with the white man.

"That is the material ranges anywhere between 250 and 1000 years old," he said. Mitchell in 1966 was in charge of the dig to fix the long-lost Fort Defiance on Meares Island, near Tofino. The fort in 1791-92 was the winter quarters of Capt. winter quarters of Capt. Robert Gray and his Boston trading ship Columbia,

Among the students working on the dig is Lt.-Cdr. Geoff Hilliard, officer in charge of visits and projects at the Esquimalt base, and a former skipper of the Oriole.

Hilliard, who has navigated most of the British Columbia coast and has run across many old Indian sites, hopes to put his knowledge to good

LARGE CAMP

While the artifacts indicate the site may only have been used as a fishing and sea hunting centre during certain seasons, park superintendent Jack Rippengale says anthropologists suspectalarge Indian encampment once occupied the property.

He said an Indian grave and a stone bowl used for grinding was found on the property some distance from the beach area, and nowhere near the midden.

The problem of establishing the pre-contact use of the site is that most of the surface

memo to advertisers

How do you believe something you can't actually look at-like the audience for your advertising?

You know that some people out there buy and read our paper-but how many, where do they live, where do they shop for their copies, and how much are they willing to pay?

Best way we know of to "see" a circulation audience (and be sure it exists) is through the facts and figures of the reports of the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

No problem to look over our circulation audience-just ask to see a copy of our latest ABC audit report.

Cruise to Alaska aboard a British isle.

Four times this summer, a selfcontained British isle, P&O's S.S. Arcadia, will sail up the smooth Inside Passage to the fjord-and-forest beauty of Alaska: Glacier Bay, Juneau (and Mendenhall Glacier), Ketchikan, Sitka - on a cruise where the ship is as intriguing as her destination.

> British seamanship, British service.

Arcadia is British, from pub to poop deck, with brass fittings, teak railings and a tea service for every passenger. Among her population-officers, crew, service staff, you'll spot accents right out of . Arthur Rank movies and Beatle albums. While relaxing in the calm reliability of traditional British seamanship and service, you can live it up with non-stop shipboard entertainment: dance bands, movies, four nightclubs and-of course, an English pub.

A genuine British value. A P&O Alaska Cruise fits comfortably within the two-week

span of an ordinary vacation. Accommodations range from a berth in a three-berth cabin for as low as US$345. A typical two-berth cabin is priced from US$410. If you're wondering where to go on your summer vacation, plan to come along on the cruise to Alaska that includes Britain, too.

Four Wednesday Sailings. S.S. Arcadia leaves Vancouver

on May 26, June 9, June 23, July 7. Via the Inside Passage to Ketchi-kan, Juneau. Complimentary tour of Mendenhall Glacier. Then through Lynn Canal and a full day in Glacier Bay. Return via Sitka to Victoria. Transportation between Victoria and Vancouver will be by B.C. Ferry.

Typical entertainment.

Our June 9 Alaska Cruise will include photography instruc-tion, bridge with the author of the Blackwood Convention, lectures on ports and fashion, and music by the Tony Austin trio and the Barbary Coasters. A complete range of accommodations is still available through your travel agent or P&O.
All P&O ships are of British registry.

Youthful Marxist rebels rose in concerted anger April 5 against the slowness of Mrs. Bandaranike's-march toward a socialist future.

Unsatisfied with a cradle-tograve socialism on a scale that not even the richest countries in the world could afford, youngsters opting for an even "purer socialism" took to the jungles to destroy a leader who already was moving in their direction as quickly as possible.

The resulting crisis threatens to force Mrs. Bandara-naike toward the middle road. At the very least, the Ceylon-ese government will be forced to reduce socialist benefits in order to pay for its defences At the most, the woman prime minister who always has believed in a socialist solution could be pushed into a rightist partnership with her chief defenders, the army and the police estamtshments. The only other of her possible routes would be for

Mrs. Bandaranaike to move over to the very extreme left and push Ceylon into Peking.

No matter which way she goes, the people of this resplendent but poor island nation could be in for months or even years of turmoil. r even years of turmoil, nstability and civil war.

For almost 15 years Ceylon has offered its citizens more benefits per capita than any other nation in the world. The benefits include free food, free education, free health care and subsidized transport.

She won office in 1970 on a wave of votes that gave her coalition almost 90 per cent of the 151-seat parliament.

Mrs. Bandaranaike fulfilled her foreign policy campaign promises to the letter — breaking relations with Israel, establishing firmer relations establishing firmer relations with the Soviet Union and with the Soviet Union and Communist China and new relations with North Korea and North Vietnam.

Before the election she spoke glowingly of how communist nations would be happy to leap to Ceylon's economic rescue with millions of dollars in badly needed foreign aid. foreign aid.

It has been all downhill for her ever since. The mssive money transfusions from communist countries never materialized, the communists preferring to provide project aid rather than cash.

Un employment remained steady, reflecting Ceylon's poor position as a country whose economy relies amost entirely on tea and rubber in an era of low market prices for both those commodities.

Scandinavia: here's why flying there on one plane is better than two.

All airlines have a legal luggage allowance. And just about every Atlantic passenger we've ever seen takes full advantage of it.

And that's fair enough. Anything you can legally carry means less to cram into those already overflowing suitcases, right?

Which is OK until you have to start carting it all around airports, transferring from one plane to another. one terminal to the next.

With Atlantic 71, once you're on, you're on till Copenhagen...your seat is yours all the way.

STUDENTS MEET CHALLENGE

Claremont Production Lively

Miser, by Claremont Secondary drama students this week illustrated the extremes of the generation gap which existed three centuries ago.

Actors threw themselves with zest into the challenge of the five-act play which depicts the turmoil of a family under a tyrannical and parsimenious master.

In the demanding lead role, Coleen Jacobsen was consistent in her characterization, hunched and paranoic, moving with the stiffness of age. She played the comical scene in which the miser loses his gold with convincing hysteria.

stage was Lili Flanjak as the scheming Frosine, while Johanna Lace secured a round of applause for her five minute mime of the slovenly maid La Merluche enjoying her master's absence! Merluche enjoying h e r master's absence!

Voices were clear and actors made good use of the stage against a simple-well-lit set. The miser was directed by Mrs. M. A. England and represented several months of rehearsal and wardrobe preparations. Intermission music was played on the harpsichord by Fiona St. Clair.

Oil Firms Consider Appearance

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock's concern over local service station appearance has prompted major oil company representatives to set up a meeting with the mayor to discuss ways of beautifying the stations.

The oil company officials will come to Victoria under the auspices of the Petroleum Society's Vancouver office which plans a study on location and appearance of service stations in Victoria and related municipalities.

Haddocks's earlier criticisms that some service stations are destroying Victoria's beauty should not be construed as an attack on service stations at large, the mayor said.

They were meant to draw the attention of the companies to the problem and that has been achieved,' the mayor said.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. (AP) District Attorney Lawrence Durning said Friday a war-rant charging cartoonist ⁶Al Capp with a morals offence against a 20-year-old Eau Claire State University co-ed had been issued by County Judge Thomas Barland.

Judge Thomas Barland.

Durning said the warrant named Alfred G. Kaplin, 61, of Cambridge, Mass., who draws the Li'l Abner comic strip and lectures under the name of Al Capp.

The district attorney said Capp was charged with sedomy, attempted adulters.

sodomy, attempted adultery and indecent exposure, following an investigation.

Capp denied the charges in statement issued through his Boston lawyer.

The complainant, who is married, told authorities the alleged offence took place April 1 in Capp's motel suite where she had gone to report to him on the liberal point of view on the Eau Claire campus. He had requested the information and she had been assigned to brief him on opinions and viewpoints, she said.
Capp made a lecture appearance the same day at a forum at Eau Claire State University, attended by some 2,500 persons.

Capp's statement, released by lawyer Alfred Hockberg, 'The allegations are en-tried untrue. I have been warned for some time now that the revolutionary left would try to stop me by any means from speaking out on campuses. My home has been vandalized and I have been physically threatened. This is also part of their campaign to stop me. Those who have faith in me know that I will

Guardrail Campaign

Not Backed A campaign to install guard rails atop Niagara Falls in Goldstream Park will receive no aid from the B.C. parks branch or the Victoria Outdoor club.

Paul Scheske, of 955 Fur-ber, a friend of Herbert Otto Hohaus who fell to his death from the top of the falls last June, has started the guard-rail campaign.

But Hugh Salmond of the Victoria Outdoor club says there are plenty of signs warning people of the danger Tarea and a person has to descend about 20 feet from the trail to get to the edge of the trail to get to the edge of the trail to get to the edge of the falls.

"The trouble is that they want to look over the brink," he said, "Any person who puts himself in such a dangerous position will climb over a rail."

China's Women: Liberated for Labor

SINGAPORE - The Chited International Women's Day with nation-wide rallies devoted to the contention that anything wide rallies Maoist man can do, Maoist woman can do as well.

Press and radio lauded a wide selection of exemplary females, including an out-standing flyer and deputy-squadron leader in the Chinese air force, 12 women oil-drillers in Inner Mongolia who had proved that prospecting was not necessarily man's work, and 60,000 feminine trainees of the touch Production and Construction Corps, the pioneering frontier force on China's sensitive borders.

Marthas and Martyrs

A decade ago Mao wrote of militia women: "They love their uniforms, not silks and satins," and today the propa-ganda computers of Peking single out female turbine generator-operators, girl trawler crews and revolutionary Marthas and Martyrs for their composite image of Chinese womanhood.

It is more than 20 years since the Communist govern-ment in Peking legalized Women's Lib.

Yet in a continent that boasts three prime ministers in skirts or saris (Israel, India and Ceylon), the movement in China may still look a little thin on top.

Chiang Ching, Mao's fierce little wife, who championed the Red Guards during the cultural revolution of the late 60s, has dropped into the background again. The widow of Sun Yat-sen, first president of the Chinese Republic, is a vice-chairman herself today, but the post is a sinecure.

Nevertheless, wives of sev-eral Communist leaders are strong and sometimes striking characters "behind the screen" and Madame Chou

Not a single girl studied at a Chinese university before 1919, but 50 years later nearly a quarfer of all university teachers and half of the secondary school teachers in China were women.

The lower you look the more marked the change. More than 60 per cent of primary school teachers and textile workers are women, and up to 40 per cent of all farm labor.

The explanation for this may lie in Mao's pragmatic approach to them, for he has evidently been more interested in ouput than in equal-

In one county alone in Hunan province about 1,500 of them are fighting against the "backwardness" and "feudal ideas" of women with twisted minds who would rather stay at home and cook and clean up and talk to each other about their families.

These are said to have fallen under the pernicious influence of the defamed,

The Peking Press urges that it is still "essential to carry out revolutionary mass criticism in depth to attack all feudal and beourgeois thinking which holds women in low esteem."

'Spilled Water'

Women have been refused party and government posts with the excuse that "sooner or later they get married?

Provincial radio stations have revealed that despite all promises on paper women workers are often looked down upon and paid less than men, and demands for equal pay meet with the objection that "the ability of women is not even half of that of men."

Newspapers stress that Newspapers stress that party organs must not neglect to train women as cadres, educational authorities must overcome "old habits of desprising women" and "pay attention to sefecting girl candidates who are qualified for study in university."

Pantsuits for every time and clime ...

Still talking about Wilson's ... and about selections ...
we feel the selection of pantsuits in the ladies' department is really something special! . The big thing about Wilson's pantsuits is that they're chosen to really fit properly as well as look smart and fashionable ... and it's this nicety of fit which makes so much difference ... especially if your figure is less than perfect naturally! . We like the Kio pantsuits from West Germany. They have printed wool tops and plain pants ... black with blue polka dot design, or gold with turquoise and blue ... There's a new Marvienne from Vienna ... black and white wool knit with slimming white V in front ... short sleeves and separate striped scarf ... Some adorable McMullen suits of 100% cotton ... Cool shirt tops with covered buttons and convertible neckline ... in flowered designs on beige ... plain pants ... in several color combinations ... From England there are smart polyester pantsuits with the "Ladies' Pride" label ... Some 3-piece tweed pantsuits with skirts ... A scarlet wool walking pant suit with sailor collar and red and white striped tie ... A hardsome jade and navy suit, double-breasted and belted ... Prices for pantsuits range from $60 to $200 ... We're going to come right out here and make a confession ... Until recently we'd always imagined that The Unicorn was a shop full of kooky, way-out clothes for kinky people ... not to be taken too seriously by those of us past the first flush of youth ... Well, we couldn't have been more wrong, as it turns out ... and if by any chance you've been thinking along these same lines, we'd like to set you straight as of now ... The other day we visited The Unicorn and came away literally bursting with enthusiasm! ... There are two distinct sides to this fascinating shop ... The pendulum swings from a selection of youth-oriented casual sportswear ... priced to fit the budgets end of the younger kids, and satisfy their quest for something different ... right over to its more important collection of 'better' clothes with a difference for the sophisticated woman ... In this connection we learned that many of The Unicorn's best customers are wives of doctors, lawyers and such ... young women leading busy social lives who want up-to-the-minute clothes in good "now" fashion ... with that extra touch of spice they usually can't find in larger stores ... For these latter we saw a series called Damascus ... three gorgeous Irish linen and arnel evening outfits ... completely washable ... comprising a long hooded coat dress, a sleeveless sheath laced at the sides and slit up the front ... and a long-sleeved dress ... Happy day . happy news! Monday sees the re-opening of The Gallery, which as you know, was that part of Home Furniture Company where all their finest furniture was displayed until Home went out of business last December . An awful lot of people . including us . felt genuinely sorry when this happened . The Gallery especially had created a real interest among lovers of good furniture . Home's Mr. Fred Bartholomew told us he was amazed at the number of people who expressed regret at The Gallery's demise . So much so that he decided not to retire after all, but to reopen The Gallery Division of Home . So that's what happens on Monday . a completely renovated Gallery displaying all the same interesting lines as heretofore in domestic as well as furniture from Britain . Shipments have been quietly coming in over the past few weeks . more on the way . and judging by the preview we got last week, The Gallery's going to be better than ever! There's English Village on the third floor . lots of new items here . Patterns for Men

Here are three patterns for men - two styles of vests

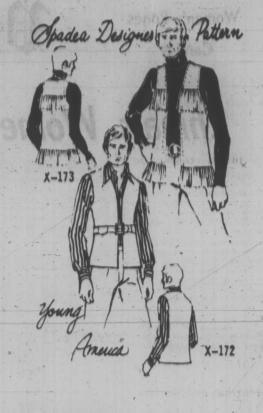

The tie, shown at left, can be made in the conventional 31/2 inch width or the fashionable 41/2 inch size. Both ties are completely lined. Suggested fabrics are linen, cotton, silk, synthetic blends or lightweight wools. The order number is X-

The vests, at tthe right, come in Western or sport styling. The sport vest, pattern number X-172, features tailored tabs that can be used as loops for the attached self-belt or as an eye-catching detail. Suggested fabrics are wool, denim, hopsacking or burlap.

The Western vest, pattern number X-173, features fringe and top stitching. Only four pattern pieces are needed. Suede, vinyl, leather or synthetic blends can be used.

Both patterns are cut in Men's sizes small (34 to 36 inch chest), medium (38 to 40 inch chest) and large (42 to 44 inch chest). A medium size pattern requires approximately 114 yards of 45 inch fabric for the sport vest or 1 yard of 45 inch fabric for the Western vest

To order any of these patterns send $1.75 for each pattern to Pattern Department, Victoria Daily Times. Make all cheques and money orders payable to the Times. Please include pattern number, size, name and address. Allow at least two weeks for delivery.

DEAR ABBY

Sad About Son

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My son is handsome, intelligent and could have married anyone he chose, but he married a fat, ugly slob who was pregnant at the time, and no telling whose child it was.

She walks all over him. He does exactly what she tells him to do like a child. She started him smoking, and everytime he tries to quit she pokes a cigarette in his mouth or gets him to light one for her. He is trying to finish college but he'll never make it because she keeps him up at all hours and he isn't able to get to school half the time besides working a 3 to 11 o'clock shift. She doesn't work, and sleeps all day herself. She humiliates him in front of others but he him in front of others, but he remains loyal to her and defends her. He thinks she is "wonderful." She is destroy-ing his health and his future. Can you tell me why my son puts up with this? Is there anything I can do to help him?—His Mother DEAR MOTHER: It is entirely possible that because of your intense hatred for the of your intense hatred for the girl, your son is trying all the harder to prove you wrong. The more you knock her, the more fiercely he will defend her. It's also possible that in his eyes she is indeed "wonderful." Save your energy, Mother. You can't help him because he doesn't feel that he needs any help.

DEAR ABBY: I am ap 18 pear-old girl with strict old-fashioned parents (especially my father). I am not allowed to accept a date with a fellow to accept a date with a fellow unless my father meets him first. But here's the catch, after he meets him, he asks a million questions, like what does he do for a living, and if he's going to college, which one, and does he live with his parents, etc.

parents, etc. Once my father suspected a boy was lying about his age, so he asked to see his driver's licence. Abby, I could under-stand my father's asking all those questions if a fellow and I were getting-serious about each other, but on the first date, it's embarrassing. What do you suppose a guy thinks when he is put through a quiz like that?—Protected

DEAR PROTECTED: I'm sure he thinks you are one girl who doesn't go out with every Tom, Dick and Harry, and he's right. And he also probably thinks that if he gets the third degree on the first date, what would happen with a proposal?

DEAR ABBY: Ten years ago, a four-year-old girl, the 10th in her family, was adopted by my niece and her husband. They provided this child (I'll call Pam) with love and a good home, and enrolled her in a public school when the time came. Pam didn't get along with the other children, fighting them on the school bus, etc., so they finally had to send her to a private school.

Now, at 14, Pam receives the lowest possible grades, makes no friends, lies constantly, has been caught stealing sizable amounts from her parents. She's even tried to set fire to the house. Tests showed hat Pam has an IQ of 99. When asked why she doesn't attempt to get better grades, her stock answer is, "I don't care to."

My heart aches for my niece who teaches school daily, runs a competent house and is raising two well-behaved sons. I notice her nerves are ragged and she appears defeated.

Is there a school or some place where this child can be sent before it's too late? I would galdly help financially.

Worried

DEAR WORRIED: It's hard to believe that your niece hasn't been at least as "worried" about Pam's antisocial behavior as you. Let her know that if psychother-apy or a special school is needed, you are prepared to

SEW SIMPLE Polyesters Need Pre-Washing

By EUNICE FARMER

A few weeks ago, I sug-gested you wash and dry your cotton knits before you cut them out. This prevents any shrinkage which could result in very unhappy results after your hard work when you find your garment stretching in direction and actually shrinking in another. Since my advice, I have heard from may readers who suggest that all washable polyester, cotton and any combination knits that are washable be washed before cutting.

that polyester thread causes a wax build-up in the sewing machine and causes the machine to skip stitches should also wash the poly-ester knits before beginning to sew. This will remove the fabric finishes that apparently cause the trouble to which you are referring.
Since the world of knits is so completely new for the home sewer, please feel free to write to me. I studied knits very extensively and hope to be able to answer all of your questions concerning any problem that may occur. We problem that may occur. We would also like to have you share any of the little tricks that have made polyesters easier for you to work with. This new fibre will play a very important part in the future of all of our clothing, so let's work together on it.

If you're getting out last

If you're getting out last summer's cottons and find they are too short, you might consider adding a strip of see-through heavy cotton lace to the lower edge of your dress. lace eding (preferably the Venice type) will have enough body to hang correctly. You will assimilate the same look that became a trademark of the famous Lilly dresses that originated in Florida. You can usually find this type of edging in almost any width necessary. Seasonings Enhance Carrots

Colorful carrots have few peers as far as availability, popularity and flavor are concerned. They are a de-pendable source of vitamin A the year round.

Unless the urban shopper has special storage facilities it is wise to purchase carrots in small quantities. They may shrivel if kept where it is warm and dry. One and one-half pounds or about 6 to 9 medium carrots will be enough for 6 servings.

enough for 6 servings.

Despite the versatility of the carrot, it usually is served boiled as a vegetable. Carrots should be carefully cooked until just done and the cooking liquid retained to assure the best retention of food value.

The home economists at Canada Department of Agri-culture suggest the use of various seasonings and sauces to bring more flavor variety to carrots.

PERSPECTIVES AND PREJUDICES

'Astronomical Intimidation' In Bad Cosmic Neighborhood

By REV. J. A. DAVIDSON
In January 1960, while serving as a chaplain in the Canadian Army, I participated in a training exercise on the tundra near Fort Churchill, which is on the shore of Hudson Bay in the far north of Manitoha.
One afternoon 10 of us dug a large snow-cave in which we were to spend the coming night.

we were to spend the coming night.

After the evening meal—in the circumstances, somewhat of a gournet affair, for the kindly old padre had been elected cook—I went outside the cave for a few minutes before crawling into my sleeping-har It was a crisp, clear Arctic night. The temperature was about 40 below, and the sayage wind cut like a sharp scythe. The Northern Lights, spectcularly bright, constantly shifted their pattern against the limitless sky. I soon forgot the terrible cold as, in awe and wonder, I looked up into the sky. into the sky. Four years ago, he predicted that government aid to Ontario separate schools would be extended to Grade 13 within five years. Aid now is given only to the end of Grade 10.

AWARENESS

Suddenly I came to an awareness, an awareness I had never had before and have never had again. It was the awareness, I think, which stirred the mind and heart of the writer of Psalm 8 when, looking up into the still night exclaimed, "What man that thou art mindful of

What is man, the paslmist asked, when considered against the cosmic back-ground. In our time we have strangely mixed attitudes toward the cosmic setting of man's life. We are proud of the scientific and technologi-cal achievements which have cal achievements which have landed men on the moon and which probe the reaches of space.

But at the same time we suffer from what someone has called "astronomical intimidation." The distinguished astronomer, Harlow Shapley, has told us this: "We must has told us this: "We must get used to the fact that we are peripheral. We move along with our star, the sun, in the outer reach of a galaxy, that is but one among billions of such star-rich galaxies." It is apparent that we do not live in a good cosmic neighborhood.

getting out of hand.
"In non-essential matters not pertaining to faith there, has been more progress under Pope Paul than under Pope Is the religious perspective, then, relevant in the space age? Is the psalmist's ques-tion merely an emotional cry

Answer?

Through the years science has purged from religion much that is unworthy. Religious thinkers have learned that is is both bad science and bad religion to try to use religious dogmas and notions to prove or disprove anything that is legitimately in the realm of science. (They have also learned that not every statement made in the name of science is necessarily scientific.) The one claim sometimes made in the name of science which religion must of science which religion must always challenge is the claim that science is the only path to truth and understanding.

Science has a competence and sureness in its own fields. and it is not open to serious challenge from religion there. But religion holds that man's existence has dimensions and concerns and realities which are beyond the scope of

MYSTERIOUSNESS

Sir James Jeans, a scientist who did much to popularize modern astronomy, som e years ago wrote a fascinating Mysterious Universe — but far more mysterious is Jeans himself as he ponders the universe's mysteriousness. Astronomy, after all, is a construct of the mind of man.

The psalmist continued his song: "Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet."
Man, alone of God's creatures, has been given power to probe the stellar spaces, power to split the atom, power to plumb the depths of his own nature, power to experience the divine dimen-

From this primitive poetry we can distil the principle, a principle we can validate in our own experience, that scientific integrity and re-ligious integrity can co-exist in the honest mind.

the box-office shuffle.

We've got one in town this week called Husbands. It has no nudity, and rather than deal directly with sex, the film watches the going-on of three middle-agad New Yorkers who ditch their housefraus for a weekend in London.

over until someone laughs just to shut the guy up. Realism is Cassavets great strength as a director, and if you don't believe Americans can make movies without casting every character from casting every character from the molds of Hollywood's images of the gods, you owe it to yourself to see Husands. Cha verite style which is a Cahiers du Cinema word for a camera technique of "telling it like it is." He doesn't compose his scenes as other artists like Bergman and Antonioni do.

Cassavetes' camera simply follows the characters around and does it well enough to avoid that rectangular duilseem to open up in your mind the same way your eyes see the room around you. We're all os used to movies telling stories from the outside the way most novels do that Cassavetes' style is hard to watch after a while. And this is partly the reason why Husbands seems to drag itself out occasionally. The other reason is that the movie is simply too long. But this is more than redeemed by three fine performances from Ben Gazzara, Peter Falk and Cassavetes himself. The trio preside over the film with—such a range of feeling and expression that feeling and expression that they become as familiar as the bartender in your favorite Husbands has no plot. Everything comes from the amus-ing and disgusting speciacles which the three—Gus, Archie and Harry—make of themselves: The standard rotten marriage story always includes the husband skipping off to somehwere sise for a "little on the side." That's essen-tially what happens in Hus-bands, but this time it's not much fur. much fur.

The husbands are crummy

The husbands are crammy lovers who couldn't entertain themselves for more than 10 minutes without spending money. The women they pick up are quite willing to go to bed with them, no questions asked. But the boys have to talk about their wives, play elaborate word games and bury their guilt with booze.

In the end, they go back to the wives, the jobs, and cars and the houses with cheap presents to bribe the kids. To me, Husbands is a glossy remake of Faces and the inferior of the two. But if

Cassavetes had made these films in reverse order, I'd be saying how much his work

TAWRENCE

An oratorio that is almost operatic in its dramatic thrust and variety, is Handel's Samson. Its reception when it was first performed at Covent Garden in 1743 was one of Handel's greatest triumphs.

A performance of this fine heroic work will be given May 17 by the Victoria Choral Society, conducted by Rodney Webster.

Christ Church Cathedral will provide the handsome setting for the production which is to begin at 8 p.m.

Soloists will be tenor Bruce Davidson singing Samson, Erika Kurth, soprano, as Delilah, Elinor Bertram, con-tralto, Micah, bass Hans Steffen as Manoak and Bass Peter Bradley as Harapha.

Other soloists will be sopranos Marilyn Jessen and Karen Smith and tenor Donald Twine.

In s t rumental accompan ment will consist of Richard Proudman at the organ, Beal Thomas, harpsichord, James Hunter, violoncello and Fer-gus Heywood, timpani.

Many well-known arias and choruses are in the score among them the immensely moving Total Eclipse and Let the Bright Seraphim.

as at present.

This year the board raised a measly 5 per cent of the budget and the executive has been so busy over-hauling and over-organizing the office and administrative side that needs of the orchestra and the musical director have sunk to the bottom instead of being given top priority.

In plain words, this is an extreme case of office man-agement assuming arbitrary powers to the point where the tail is actually beginning to wag the dog.

Personality clashes are inevitable in many situations, but often can be resolved or ignored as long as they do not threaten stability of the organization.

That such a clash now exists between the Victoria Symphony's musical director and the business manager and between the latter and some board and orchestra bers, is common knowledge in music circles.

The Anxious Hunt for Individuality

At the public gallery this past week two exhibitions have been hung. The graduating students from the University of Victoria's Visual Arts Department show works that arpxious bunt for individuality in a field where literally any-thing is possible. And from Yugoslavia's School of Naive Aft, there is a group of small, lyrical, very excellent paintr.,

For the students at Uvic, their graduation and this exhibition is an initiation. Leaving the creative atmosphere of the school, the competition of fellow students, and the university's marvelous equipment; the problem of working by themselves, of motivating self without the system of marks and without the help of teachers, come to the fore-ground. Will they continue to learn even more by them-

For some of these students, for some of these students, though their participation in the arts may fall off, their loyalty will continue. If they have failed to learn how to create and develop, they have learned how to see. The effort of depositing their guts into self-made containers coupled with having to take responsiwith having to take responsi-bility for this expression, cannot have but taught them something.

In this exhibition, the work of Jan Vriesen is outstanding, as was his work in the student show at the Provincial Museum the winter be-fore last. This is understand-able considering Jan's ex-perience. He is in his late twenties and has attended at least two other art schools before Uvic. He has worked as a designer for McGill Uni-versity's McCord Museum in Montreal.

There is little that an art There is little that an art school can teach him, but it can provide the certification necessary for a taching position, the fate of most artists. A few years ago a teaching post at a university could be won on the strength of an artist's work; today with a vast field of unemployed artists to choose from, a degree, even two degrees, are demanded.

Jan has two paintings in Jan has two paintings in this show; one, about six feet square, is the beginning of a great painting. A white orgreat painting. A white of compromise between flesh and ghost, rises floating from a sofa of rich red. Above this loop another loop hangs in the air. A well painted minimal statement faithful to its ori-statement faithful to its origins in the surreal.

In his other painting, Janifalls into a trap areated by his desire to use dangerously subtle subject matter. The strength of the painting outdistances the image. The result is a clever surface where the motive present at the painting's conception has dissolved during realization. The image fights for validity by means of pretense.

A painting entitled Envelope creates a visual toy from reality. Made by George Gutemar, this canvas shaped like an envelope with the flaps up, exposes like birds of

The critic could not understand this work without looking at the title; only then did the fact that this was an envelope become clear. I would take very little to clarify this fact within the painting; then its playful conceptual reality would join with the fine visual handling to complete a good painting. to complete a good painting

George's other work, en-titled Up, satisfies all the criteria common to modern color painting. The result is seductive, but does not transcend the formulistic enough to hold the attention. This also applies to the work entitled Double A. Color science and fluctuating gestaults are valuable only in so far as the artist's sensibility creeps into the weave of scientific optical fact. But this will develop.

Another of her prints, Eleventy-Seventy, has a title that could stand on its own without could stand on its own without further complication; but here is an attached image, crisp and unique in concept. A figure with no arms, only head and breasts, has a large picture space all to itself. The breasts protrude, successfully conveying an eretic attitude which if handled with less concern could be in bad taste. There are three panels

There are three panels cluttered with coloring book imagery. Their creator, Naomi Stevens, has succeeded in making what the critic has seen before only in high school murals succeed beyond the capabilities of a second-ary student. Some of the imagery is corny and some is observed, but the admixture is always a surprise. That such playfulness should be continued so obsessively over such a large area is a rare

Terror Hits San Juan

By IRWIN GOODWIN

SAN JUAN, P.R. (WP) SAN JUAN, P.R. (WP)
With the pre-dawn bombings of two department stores in different parts of the city earlier this week, anger and anxiety are increasing in Puerto Rico about a surging wave of terrorism.

In the past month four high explosive devices and two homemade firebombs have ripped out storefronts and destroyed merchandise of businesses identified with the Damages from the latest bombings at the New York department stores chain are estimated at around $350,000.

Police, politicians and much of the public blame the terrorism on a radical fringe of endenpendentistas.

The bombings and burning of U.S businesses dates from a 1967 plebiscite called to determine whether Puerto Ricans preferred statehood, independence or continuation of the commonwealth associated the of the commonwealth associa-tion with the United States. Over 60 per cent favored the status quo commonwealth, 39 per cent wanted statehood and less than one per cent

Since 1967, U.S. businesses such as IBM, Woolworth's, Burger King, J. C. Penney, Sears and various tourist hotels have suffered losses approaching a total of $25 million from the activities of terrorists.

The most militant terrorists organization calls itself the Comandos Armados de Liberaction, or Armed Commandos for Liberation. Organized during the plebiscite campaign, it boasts of its terrorist activities in news releases typewritten in Spanish and sent to wire services and radio stations.

cal.'s first operation was a $2 million bombing of a Bargain Town discount house outside San Juan in 1967. The group took credit for the destruction of Bargain Town in a letter signed "independence or death, Alfonso Beal, chief of CAL."

The name Beal is believed to be an acronym constructed from the names of the late and Pedro Albizu Campos.

Beal once proclaimed in an interview with a Cuban newspaper that CAL's goal was to destroy $100 million worth of U.S. businesses in Puerto Rico.

A leading insurance execu-tive says that CAL, has now reached one-fourth of that reached one-fourth of that target.

Its violent setivities are achieving a more far-reaching objective. American businessmen are becoming increasingly fearful of starting new operations on the island while the terrorists remain at sarge. Some observers believe one reason tourism is down the past two years is because vacationers are being scared off by the bombings.

The head of the New York Department Stores, two of which were plasted Tuesday, charged at a news conference

The government is getting tighter-fipped a bout salaries paid the presidents of Crown corporations.

In a Commons reply for David Orlikow (NDP Winnipeg North) the government says the presidents of the CBC and the Cape Breton Development Corp. are each paid $50,000 a year.

But it refuses to give, as it used to do, the salaries of the bosses of Air Canada, Canadian National Railways, Polymer's president's salary could not be given because of the "highly competitive nature of the business in which the company is engaged."

On Air Canada: "It has not been considered in the best interest of Air Canada to disclose data on employees' earnings."

Six senior civil servants are paid $42,000 a year: Gordon Robertson, clerk of the cabinet; S. S. Reisman, deputy minister of finance; D. S. Maxwell, deputy minister of justice; A. W. Johnson, secretary of treasury board; Jules Leger, undersectary of state; and Ed Ritchie, undersecretary of state for external affairs.

The Trudeau government has made public eight white papers of which 638,020 copies have been printed at a cost of about $185,000.

The big printings were for the white papers on tax reform, since partially scrapped, on, income security and on unemployment insurance. Printing for each was 175,000 copies.

Up to Wednesday, the prime minister's office had received about 200 letters and telegrams critical of the proposed pay increase for MPs.

This is a relatively small number on any given subject, in recent weeks, most of the letters received in Mr. Trudeau's office have concerned abortion, products of organized campaigns by both anti- and proabortion factions.

One of the arguments used in favor of pay increases for MPs is that tenure of office is uncertain.

Bonn Plan Rejected By France

BRUSSELS (AP) West German and French finance chiefs disagreed today over methods to solve the international monetary crisis set off by the flood of United States dollars into Europe.

Karl Schiller, West German economics minister, proposed that the six Common Market currencies be allowed to float— that is, to find their own level in terms of the U.S. dollar on world markets based on supply and demand. He said the period of floating should be limited.

But Valery Giscard d'Estaing, the French finance minister and chairman of the emergency Common Market meeting, said a concerted float of all Common Market currencies was "not plause, the " Karl Schiller, West German

Pilgrimage for Charity And a Groovy Feeling

By BOB MITCHELL

There's a groovy feeling about being part of 10 to 12-thousand people just waiting to do something straighfor-ward, like walk 25 miles.

It was a happy crowd mainly teen-agers — that gathered this morning on the Centennial Stadium parking lot, a crowd filled with good feelings just from being together under the clear morning sanlight.

There was the idealism, too, the feeling that a good cause is worth a pilgrimage, the need to punish the body a little in order to make a real contribution to a charitable

The final cut probably will come out of contingencies.

The total amount cut from the record budget will be about $461,000, leaving it set at about $24,782,000.

Any further decrease in the amount approved would begin to cut back seriously on services, council was told.

The only change in revenue structure will be an adjustment in most types of construction inspection fees, to more closely cover the cost of the service.

SAANICH POLICE HISTORY

Hangings, Six-Guns Featured

The Sundance Kid-like portrait of Henry Wagner does not reveal the man as a turn-of-the-century

Yet, Wagner, alias The Flying Dutchman, was hung in Nanaimo in 1913 for shooting down a policeman at Union Bay.

And next week his photograph, the single-action Colt 45 revolver with which he killed the lawman and the hood with a chunk of the rope used at his execution will be part of the Saanich Police department's exhibits at the Hillside shopping centre marking Canadian Police Week The exhibits will include a pictorial history of the Saanich force since its inception in 1906. They will show old uniforms and police equipment used by both Saanich and provincial police forces as well as weapons confiscated from lawbreakers.

Deputy Chief R. A. Peterson said Friday the Saanich after next week's exhibit has finished.

He said'it was hoped to set up perimeter displays around the Saanich courtroom attached to the police station on Vernon Avenue although this was still in the planning stage. He explained the courtroom at the moment is not used for trials. The exhibits at the shopping centre will be open 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday to Friday and 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Other displays include police insignia of Canadian and U.S. forces as well as the B.C. Provincial Police force that operated from 1858 to 1950.

A squad car set up with radar, a fingerprinting demonstration and, hopefully, a breathalyzer machine on loan from Vancouver are also planned for display along with films

Indian matorcycle similar to ones used by Saanich years ago. There will also be one of the current motorcycles on view.

Some of the more unique items are the sword cane of the chief security officer during the construction of the Pahama Canal, a set of 14-pound leg irons of the 1800s that were

The numbers of its soon-tohe-busy battery of telephones are still to be announced. When they're available, I'll repeat them here, and keep them on file. If your problems threaten to outmatch you, don't hesistate to use one of those phone numbers. Your call will be answered

The crisis line is to function strictly as a referal centre. This was stressed to me by a spokesman for the widely-assorted group that set to

They will be armed with cross-indexed lists of minividuals or agencies offering specialized help in the fields that engage them.

They would then shake out their piggy-banks, which never held quite enough coin for their purposes. Then they would either claim their next-

I would make suggestions which weren't usually re-e e i v e d with enthusiasm. Oftener than not, we would wind up at a store that sold little glass or china creatures. The kids would decide that this horse, this fish, this fing was precisely what Mother wanted.

And, of course, they were always right! As a result, and even though some of those gifts have been broken beyond further mending, my dear one still has a pretty fair supply of horses, frogs and fishes to remind her of Mothers Days that have come and gone.

Two ridiculous gimmicks of the 1940's.

Everyone laughed when they came out with the television.

A box that could show pictures from 3,000 miles away? Absurd.

But everyone really cracked up when we came out with the Volkswagen.

A car with its engine in the back? Its trunk in the front? And its radiator in neither the front nor the back?

It even looked like a loke. But time marched on.

The television clicked. The Volkswagen accelerated, People liked the idea of a car that didn't drink gas like water. Or oil like water, Or, for that matter, didn't even drink water. Some strange people even liked the idea that it was strange looking.

In fact, Detroit car makers now like the idea of a Volkswagen so much that they decided to make their own.

And even with all those new small cars around, the fate of the bug is still secure. This is the first year for all of the others. We've had 23 years of re-runs.

her destination. British seamanship, British service.

Arcadia is British, from pub to poop deck, with brass fittings, teak railings and a tea service for every passenger. Among her population-officers, crew, service staff, you'll spot accents right out of J. Arthur Rank movies and Beatle albums. While relaxing in the calm reliability of traditional British seamanship and service, you can live it up with non-stop shipboard en-tertainment: dance bands, movies, four nightclubs and of course, an English pub.

A genuine British value. A P&O Alaska Cruise fits comfortably within the two-week span of an ordinary vacation. Accommodations range from a berth in a three-berth cabin for as low as US$345. A typical two-berth cabin is priced from US$410. If you're wondering where to go on your summer vacation, plan to come along on the cruise to Alaska that includes Britain, too.

Four Wednesday Sailings.

SINGAPORE — The Chinese celebrated International Women's Day with nationwide rallies devoted to the contention that a nything Maoist man can do, Maoist woman can do as well.

woman can do as well.

Press and radio lauded a wide selection of exemplary females, including an outstanding fiyer and deputy-squadron leader in the Chinese air force, 12 women oil-drillers in Inner Mongolia who had proved that prospecting was not necessarily 'man's work, and 60,000 feminine trainees of the touch Production and Construction Corps, the pioneering frontier force the pioneering frontier force on China's sensitive borders.

Marthas and Martyrs

A decade ago Mao wrote of militia women: "They love their uniforms, not silks and satins," and today the propa-ganda computers of Peking single out female turbine gen e ra tor-operators, girl trawler crews and revolution-ary Marthas and Martyrs for their composite image of Chinese womanlicod.

It is more than 20 years since the Communist govern-ment in Peking legalized ment in P Women's Lib.

Yet in a continent that boasts three prime ministers in skirts or saris (Israel, India and Ceylon), the move-ment in China may still look a little thin on top.

Chiang Ching, Mao's fierce little wife, who championed the Red Guards during the cultural revolution of the late 60s. has dropped into the background again. The widow of Sun Yat-sen, first president of the Chinese Republic, is a vice-chairman herself today, but the post is a sinecure.

Nevertheless, wives of several Communist leaders are strong and sometimes strik-ing characters "behind the screen" and Madame Chou a keener political brain even than her husband the prem-ier. Twelve per sent of Central Committee members of the Chinese Communist Party are women, and at the last Party Congress one deleevery five was Not a single girl studied at a Chinese university before 1919, but 50 years later nearly a quarter of all university teachers and half of the secondary school teachers in China were women.

The lower you took the more marked the change More than 60 per cent of primary school teachers and textile workers are women, and up to 40 per cent of all texts.

The explanation for this may lie in Mao's pragmatic approach to them, for he has evidently been more inter-ested in outut than in equal-

'China's women are a vast "China's women are a vast resource of labor power which must be tapped," he has emphasized. They are the equal of men in at least one respect — they can be made to work just as hard.

Reluctant Sisters

Accordingly, more more female cadres are being trained to update their own sometimes reluctant sisters on the productive role they should be playing as revolutionary women.

tianary women.

In one county alone in Hunan province about 1,500 of them are fighting against the "backwardness" and "feudal ideas" of women with twisted minds who would rather stay the borner and cetar. at home and cook and clean up and talk to each other about their families.

These are said to have fallen under the permicious influence of the defamed,

Shao-chi — "The renegade, hidden traitor and scab!" who so heretically claimed that "as long as women took care of their husbands and house-holds they would be serving the people in the best possible

'Spilled Water'

women have been refused; party and government posts with the excuse that "sooner or dater they get married" and this has even been made the pretext for arguing that girls should not be sent to school. Why train a girl and then give her to someone eise? She will be no more to you than "spilled water."

Prompted gradie stations

Provincial radio stations have revealed that despite all promises on paper women workers are often looked down upon and paid less than men, and demands for equal pay meet with the objection that "the ability of women is not even half of that of men." not even half of that of men.

Newspapers stress that early organs must not neglect o train women as cadres, to train women as eadres, educational authorities must overcome "old habits of desprising women" and "pay attention to selecting girl candidates who are qualified for study in university."

More over management

Moreover, management committees still do not want to put women into key jobs because they have babies and disappear for 56 days' mater-

Family planning has provided half the answer to this problem, and has liberated tarms, switching her from her original production line to one with higher priority.

The Chinese have developed cheap methods of abortion, have legalized sterilization and introduced a form of-contraceptive pill.

Abortion is frowned on, men Abortion is frowned on, men recoil nerviously from sterilization, and women say the pill often makes them sick, but less ambitious ways of cheating pregnancy are wide-spread and girls are discouraged from marrying before they are 25, men before they are 30.

This is not the ideal solution-either, however, for it is a little like banning tumblers to encouvage temperance and the result is often more permissiveness and pregnant

It is also reported that some girl students and young intellectuals sent down to the farms to "learn from the peasants" are exploiting the general frustration by slipping back into cities like Canton and, since they cannot register for rations or regular work, earning a living at the oldest profession. oldest profession.

Prefer Home

Nonetheless, the birthrate has dropped and the revolu-tion has freed women who were bound chest and foot to ancient Chinese traditions of subservience, offering them a emancipated political and productive animals closely resembling men.
It seems ironical, then, that so many of them should prefer home to the work-bench, child-bearing to polithat so many men should swill treat them as cheap and dis-Perhaps the personal amples set by their latest leaders have given thempause of thought. The wives of both Chou En-lai and Mavshal Chu Teh, Mao Tsetung's oidest comrade-inarms, dutifully svoided having children when young so that they could devote themselves to the Revolution. And both are known to regret it now.

Mao's Wives

As for Mao himself, when he beame a guerrilla leader he left his first wife and three children in a place of safety, and as he did not send for them even after he had consolidated his revolutionary base his wife was caught by the Chinese Nationalists and subsequently killed.

Maoe had meanwhile found a second wife. His former comrades say that this woman bore him at least four woman bore nim at least four children in his guerrilla stronghald, and one more on the famous Long March to Yenan. To her distress, how-ever, Mao gave them all away to peasants as he did not wish to be encumbered not wish to be encumbered with them in the middle of a revolutionary war, and they have not been traced since.

have not been traced since.

Once in Yenan, Mao compained that his wife had become mentally sick and sent her away to the Soviet Union. He then took up with a young film starlet whom the world now knows as Chian

Chinese women chinese women may be forgiven for wondering sometimes who have been the real sufferers. Too often it seems to have been a case of couvade, that curious custom among certain tribes whereby the husband goes to bed with simulated birth-pangs but it is the wife who has the baby.

Women are equal with men in at least one respect in Mao's Chinathey can be made to work just as hard. Many former baby-a-year wives have been liberated for work on farms or in factories, switching from their original production line to one with higher priority.
